WE NOMINATE

Eugene Paul Wigner, one of the "fathers of the atomic age" and a resident of this community for the past two decades, whose leadership in the field of physics has helped shape Princeton's future as a center of fundamental scientific research. The recipient this fall of the Franklin Medal, the highest honor the Franklin Institute can confer and the third honorary award he has received in the space of 18 months, Wigner in the year 1950 is as much of a trail-blazer as the restless, rugged individualist of the bygone frontier era.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, and educated in Germany, Wigner—now 47 years old—took his degrees in engineering but was attracted to physics about a quarter-century ago, at a time when the science was undergoing some of the most revolutionary changes in its history, changes which provided a basically new description of nature. With a rare understanding of mathematics, and with his engineering background, Wigner forged into the front rank of these pioneers in science and in his late 20's was making contributions that served as points of departure for further work in the area of physics now known as quantum mechanics.

First called to Princeton in 1930 and naturalized in 1937, the year before he was named Thomas D. Jones Professor of Theoretical Physics here at the University, Wigner played a key, and dramatic, role in each chapter in the development of the atomic bomb. Ten years ago he was one of the handful of men who interested the United States in the military possibilities of atomic energy. The afternoon of December 2, 1942, in a dim squash racquets court under Stagg Field, Chicago, he was one of the 42 scientists who watched "Pile No. 31" produce the first controlled nuclear chain reaction. His were the design calculations for the atomic pile at Hanford, Wash., that first produced atomic power on a tremendous scale.

Wigner, decorated with the Medal of Merit in 1946 by a grateful government, filled top-secret administrative assignments during and immediately after World War II. Three hectic years as Director of Theoretical Physics at the Metallurgical Laboratories, Chicago (part of the Manhattan Project), were followed by two more years as Director of Research and Development at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Tennessee. He continues to hold forth as consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission and is also a member of the Advisory Committee of the national Bureau of Standards.

For his outstanding achievements in the world of science; for his heartfelt devotion to the best interests of his adopted nation; for bolstering American research traditions; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

Random Notes. Ten days after the Community Chest drive started, some $65,000 is at hand, against the $109,000 goal. Those who have not yet given are asked to send their contributions direct to Chest headquarters, 166 Nassau Street.

something about the game. Harry

October weather has been like the rest of 1950, with the odd exception of the two summer months.
Save for July and August, the rest of the year has been drier and warmer than normal.

Announcement has been made that the New Jersey Turnpike (scheduled for completion a year from now) and the Pennsylvania Turnpike, which is being extended from one border of the Keystone State to the other, will be linked.
When that occurs, Princetonians will be able to drive from here to Ohio on a four to six-lane highway in about five hours.

Pupils in Princeton High School's agricultural course are accompanying thoroughbred cattle from New Jersey to Miami on the first leg of plane trips to Venezuela, where the government is importing them from the U. S. The first two to make the trip were Clyde Ashton and Peter Gulick.

Residents of a nearby community found out who was breaking their car windshields. It was the owner of the local glass shop, short of business and armed with a slingshot.

In one respect, Princeton will be unlike any other community in the nation this weekend. It's the site of the only remaining game in the 1950 season between two unbeaten football teams.

The Firing Begins. In a town which voted heavily for Congressman Charles R. Howell when he was elected two years ago, his Republican opponent, Gill Robb Wilson, was the target this week of two statements attacking his political philosophy.

The Daily Princetonian, in urging Mr. Howell's return to Washington, charged that Mr. Wilson's "three-point program on domestic issues calls for 1) a balanced budget; 2) a reduction in taxes and 3)

ed." Said the "Prince" editorial, "In this day and age, it is a virtual impossibility to combine these three sugar plums."

Next day, a score of townspeople and university officials condemned Mr. Wilson's conception of foreign policy as "detrimental to the cause of world peace." Strong exception was taken to two of his recommendations: "Throw Stalin and his satellites out of the United Nations," and "Issue an ultimatum that the next attempt by Stalin to make a satellite of another nation will be blocked by the atom bomb."

The statement charged that such a program "reveals inadequate understanding of the international problems facing our country and a tendency toward naive solutions dictated by emotion and hysteria rather than by common sense." The signers included Dean and Mrs. J. Douglas Brown, Mrs. Henry Chauncey, Mrs. Charles T. Cowenhoven, Dan D. Coyle, Gordon A. Craig, Edmund S. DeLong, Dean Christian Gauss, E. Harris Harbison, Jeter A. Isely, Joseph E. McLean, Joseph J. Redding, Professor and Mrs. Daniel Sayre, Ernest T. Stewart Jr., Paul J. Strayer, Willard Thorp, Dr. and Mrs. J. Kendall Wallis and Alexander Zavelle.

Old Joke. A decade and a half ago, shortly after Congress had passed a two-and-a-half billion dollar bonus bill, a group of Princeton University students formed an organization which they named "The Veterans of Future Wars." Their basic platform was the demand for $1,000 for every man of draft age "to be paid while they are still around to enjoy it."

The effect of the gibe at bonus-hungry groups was instantaneous, more than 500 chapters (and auxiliaries at women's colleges) forming throughout the country. The nation's press went heavily for the story as it grew, and established veterans' groups struck back at the movement.

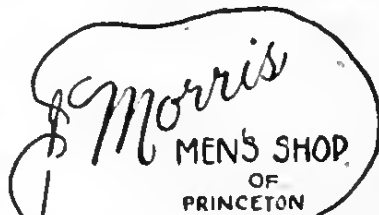

This week, a group of undergraduates revived the organization, asked for the same bonus in view of rather imminent service in the armed forces and adopted the original salute, "the outstretched itchy palm." But the present-day backers of the satire had a couple of pitfalls to watch for: in 1950, there was no bonus issue, and in 1936, the movement smacked of a once-popular isolationist outlook that died on the battlefields of World War II.

Rooms Wanted. Nassau Chapter, Order of De Molay, has issued an appeal for sleeping quarters on the night of Saturday, November 4, for nearly 100 high school boys and a score of Masons bound here from all parts of the state for the organization's annual New Jersey conclave.

All meals will be furnished elsewhere, and the chapter adds that "nothing fancy is expected." Volunteers are asked to call T. Cuyler Young, Jr., conclave chairman, at 3122-M or Randolph Applegate, master of Princeton Lodge No. 38, F. & A. M., at 224-R.

Music Lovers. An organization whose success is built on a combination of enthusiasm and ability will launch its 16th season Sunday afternoon when the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs gathers at Miss Fine's School. Its members will start on Brahms's Requiem at —Continued on Page 5

Going Back. For two weeks, starting Monday, The Witherspoon Art and Book Shop, 33 Witherspoon, will have a particular appeal for certain people: those who have any interest in "Princeton College," the Theological Seminary or the history of New Jersey, which should cover a fair number of Princeton residents. The appeal will be in the form of a special collection (you'll be welcome as a "just-looker" or as a buyer) of books, pamphlets and pictures full of amusing and intriguing sidelights on the University, the Theological Seminary and the state in which they're located.

For instance: there are class histories dating from the Civil War class of 1863; a book entitled "Glimpes of Colonial Society and Life at Princeton College, 1766-1773," written by a member of '73 (that's 17—not 18, don't forget); a book of songs of 1869; pamphlets, woodcuts, lithographs and photographs dating from 1844 and including a photograph of the football team of 1888 and programs of the Harvard-Princeton game of 1896. We've emphasized the University angle because that's where our 19th century connections lie, but there is much of interest to seminary students (for their descendants) and general historians.

Just to give you an idea of the kind of thing you may find if you browse around a bit, we'll tell you that we were glancing through the class history of 1863 and hit upon the name of our grandfather, whose vintage we knew though we'd forgotten his exact class. In his summary of his activities since graduating he informed his classmates that he'd courted a certain young lady whose name was definitely not that of our grandmother! So you see there's no telling what little items you might uncover if you spend some time delving into the special collection; but even if you uncover nothing personal, the time would be well spent from a general interest standpoint.

"Chenell" Jewelry. If rhinestones have always looked just a little too much like an imitation diamond to you, but you can't go in for the real thing and still like a little glitter, this new type of stone at Clayton's on Palmer Square may be the solution for you. "Chenell" is a brand new glass stone which, because it is on both sides (not backed by paint, like rhinestones), has a real gleaming sparkle.

All of the "Chenell" jewelry, which comes in necklace, pendants, bracelets and earrings, has a simple delicate look, although some of the pieces are quite plain, others fairly ornate. We liked best a necklace of graduated stones, cut in a diamond shape, that has a bracelet to match. Prices are good for your budget what the jewelry can do for your wardrobe—earrings start at $1, bracelets are $3 and pendants begin at $2, all plus the cut for Uncle Sam.

Speaking of rhinestones reminds us that there is something new, also —Continued on Page 9

Founded in 1935 with some 20 members by Mrs. Mackenzie Bryan and Professor Roy D. Welch, the society is modelled along the lines of the well-known Drinker Chorus in Philadelphia. It sought to bring together all musically-minded Princetonians interested in singing the great choral works of musical literature for the enjoyment therein without thought of public appearance.

From a group of 20, the society has grown to 160 members, who attend meetings once a month from October through May. They sing under the direction of Professors
J. Merrill Knapp and Elliot Farber of the Department of Music, the former its acting chairman.

Membership dues are $2 annually, with a charge of $1 made for the Sunday suppers. The society is open to all residents of the Prince-

News of the Theatres

For Music Lovers. Two concerts of interest are scheduled during the next four days. In McCarter Theatre Saturday night, Beveridge Webster, pianist, will be heard in the second of University Series I, with tickets at the University Store now and the box office before the performance.

His program includes Sonata in F major, K. 533 by Mozart; Sonata in B minor by Liszt; Stravinsky's Piano Rag-Music; Bartok's Three Etudes, Op. 18; Three Piano Pieces, Op. 11 by Schoenberg; and Barcarolle and Ballade, No. 4 in F minor by Chopin.

Tuesday at 4 and again at 8, the Westminster Orchestra will be heard in the Playhouse on the college campus; admission is without charge. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct and Mme. Agi Jambor, internationally-known Hungarian pianist, will be the guest soloist.

The program: Symphony No. 104 in D Major (London), Haydn; Concerto in D Minor for Piano and Orchestra, Bach; Concerto-Rondo No. 28 for Piano and Orchestra, Mozart; Intermezzo from "Fennimore and Gerda," Delius; Polka from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana.

FRICK AUDITORIUM

Burlesque of Carmen, a 1915 film in which Charlie Chaplin satirized a lavish Cecil B. DeMille production of the same era, is the Group Arts' program this Friday evening. The shows at 7 and 9 will also feature a history of cartoons from magic lantern slides of 1879 to Walt Disney's first Mickey Mouse in 1932.

MURRAY THEATRE

The Importance of Being Ernest, well-known, Oscar Wilde comedy, will open the Theatre Intime's season this Friday night and run for seven consecutive evenings thereafter, Sunday excluded. The cast includes Michael Strater, Morey Bell, Ann Fleck, Dee Bixby, Ann MacMichaels and Lee Wilcox. Tickets, $1.65 and $1.85, at the University Store or the box office.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Toast of New Orleans (Thurs.-Sat.), a lush period musical of the turn of the century features Kathryn Grayson and Mario Lanza, both of whom can sing. The story, recording the latter's transformation from a Louisiana bayou-country fisherman into an operatic star, is trivial to the point of foolishness. The music, capped by a good portion of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," is quite enjoyable.

Union Station (Sun.-Tues.) takes Los Angeles' railroad terminal as the setting for a cops-and-robbers chase in which the leader of a gang is holding a blind teen-age girl as hostage. Cut-and-dried characters are more than offset by good photography and mounting suspense.

The Glass Menagerie (Wed.-Sat.), Tennessee Williams' prize-winning play of frustration and impending tragedy, is the story of a well-meaning woman who utterly dominates the lives of her two adult children. Short of the impressiveness of the drama on the stage but very well acted by Gertrude Lawrence, Jane Wyman and Arthur Kennedy.

THE GARDEN

Saddle Tramp (Fri.-Sat.) casts Joel McRea as an easy-going cow-puncher whose life is suddenly complicated when his best friend is killed and he becomes father to four boys. The film is a Technicolor western set in Nevada, offering the usual quota of hard-riding, cattle stealing, flying fists and gun-play.

I Was a Male War Bride (Mon.-Tues.) is proof that the trend of bringing back virtually any World War II film is likely to be overdone. A routine comedy of that vintage.

Henry V (Wed.-Thurs.), back this time at regular prices, is the impressive Shakespearian drama made four years ago in England. The story of the Battle of Agincourt and the events which led up to it in the 15th century, it is an outstanding motion picture experience. Laurence Olivier heads the fine cast.

SPORTS IN SHORT

Gridiron Giants Clash. In all the United States this week, there are only ten major unbeaten and untied football teams. Eight of them are going their separate ways this Saturday but two of them will collide head on in Palmer Stadium in the last such meeting of the 1950 season. Game time is 2 o'clock for the Cornell-Princeton contest which is expected to rank with the best the nation will see this week-end.

The largest crowd to sit in on proceedings here since the Yale game of 1947 is ready to descend on the community. With good weather, a rock-bottom sellout of just under 50,000 is a possibility.

Off its 8-and-1 record last year, plus the addition of an unbeaten freshman team, Cornell deserves to go into the game the favorite. Personnel-wise, the Ithacans have everything the Tigers can claim, plus depth.

The Big Red has speed to match the Princetonians and tops them in size. Its offensive line averages better than 200 pounds but it still can anchor its defensive wall with Frank Micklavzina and Jim Jerome, a pair of 6-3, 220-pound tackles.

Its backfield is without Pete Dorset, the passer who came up as an unheralded sophomore in 1947 to trim the Tigers, and Hillary Chollet, a topflight halfback. But it has Rocco Calvo, a standout quarterback, running Lefty James' T. and Jeff Fleischmann, one of the best fullbacks in the business. Lyon Hull and Frank "Moose" Miller provide the speed at the half-back posts. Hal Seldenberg, Bob Engel, Bill Whelan and Stu Merz are others who will be heard from.

Princeton is heading into the game with one major lineup change, effected against Brown, that appears to be permanent. Defensively, sophomore Frank McPhee has been moved into the backfield, where he will pair with Jack Davison at halfback. His end assignment goes to Cliff Kurrus.

At mid-week, the team was in topflight condition and relatively well rested after its easy victory over Brown. George Hawke is set to go at guard in the offensive platoon and Jack Davison will see double duty. These two were the only players of the 47 who went to Providence who did not see action.

Saturday's clash figures to be a defensive ability of the two teams on a spit. The display won first prize in a contest for humorous sets of this type, and that was just about the sum total of the Providence brethren's winnings last week.

The Tiger football team took charge when the game started. racked up a first period touchdown and stopped a retaliatory drive on its own inch-line. Then, in the second period, it rolled for 20 points in seven minutes, squeezed the breath out of the somewhat ragged Bruin and sent the reserves in to sit on him during the last half.

After the first drive fizzled and fumbles had been exchanged, Kazmaier passed to Ed Reed and then to George Chandler for the yardage that brought the first score. Brown went just under 70 yards before Frank McPhee's crunching tackle ended the drive on fourth down barely short of the final mark.

That was all for the home forces. Bobby Unger, the Ivy League's top scorer, followed precise downfield blocking to go 55 yards on a pass from Kazmaier in 3:08 of the second period. When Dave Hickock recovered a fumble on the next kickoff, Harry Patterson spun over in 6:42. Pivrotto's picturesque interception was followed at 10:53 by a Kazmaier-to-Kliensasser pass that went 12 yards on fourth down.

The reserves gained more yardage in the second half than the varsity did in the first, but could punch over only a single touchdown. Russ McNeil bucked over after Ned Jannotta's running had set up the TD. The victory was Princeton's eighth in a row, and marked the first time in 15 years that it had won the first four games on its schedule.

KEY BACK IN DEFENSIVE PLANS TO STOP CORNELL

Dick Pivrotto, who broke into the starting defensive platoon in last year's near upset of Cornell, is rated one of the East's best safety men. Few Princeton players have been quicker at diagnosing the type and direction of the opposition's plays.

As a result of their performance last weekend, the Tigers top the Ivy Group in total offense (averaging 461.8 yards per game) and are second in the nation only to Army, which has 465.7. Cornell is third in team offense and first in defense, with Princeton second. The figures point to quite a battle, with the Tigers a likely bet to take at Clayton's, in that line. A two-strand dog collar, which just clips on and needs no fastening, would be a most effective filler-in for in these days of plunging and low-cut necklines. That, too, has a matching bracelet.

Maternity Skirts. Price is always important but it seems to us never more so than in maternity clothes, which you'd like to be able to throw away when their duty is done. At Bailey's, 13 Witherspoon, are a group of simple, flattering skirts, priced low enough so that you can do just that.

They come in pinwheel corduroy and rayon faille, the former in gray, hunter green and brown, the latter in navy, brown or black. The back of the skirt is perfectly plain, the front has soft gathers which fall from an adjustable, wide waistband. Buttons spaced at intervals allow for changing waistlines, and if your change is more gradual than the buttons allow for, all you have to do is move them where you want them to be.

The corduroys are $4.98 and come in 12 to 18; the failles, at a mere $2.98, are in sizes 10 to 20. Not only do those prices mean you can conscientiously dispense with the skirts after many months of steady wear, but you can also afford to add at least two changes of costume to what most of us find a tedious and limited wardrobe.

Cornell's place among the first ten in the nation should they upset the Big Red.

High School Also Unbeaten. Another Princeton team remained in the ranks of the unbeaten last weekend, the high school eleven tying bigger Trenton Catholic, 7-7, under lights at Trenton's Dunn Field. The deadlock gave the Blue and White a mark of three victories and a tie in four starts.

At "Peaches" Moore ran 14 yards around left end in the first period and then passed to Buster Thomas for the extra point to account for the visitors' scoring. They protected this lead until mid-way through the last quarter, when 200-lb. Don Wollman went over from the one and then plunged across again to tie it up. The Little Tigers face Somerville on their own field this Friday afternoon.

Victory at Hun. Jim Fleming and Dennis Beecher each scored a pair of touchdowns Saturday as Hun registered its first win in two starts, topping St. Bernard's of Gladstone, 33-12. Jerry Spacek, Princeton High alumnus, accounted for the other Red and Black tally.

Bob Meyer, another Princeton product, threw a 20-yard pass to Beecher for a TD three minutes after the game opened and Fleming added a 26-yard scoring dash before the quarter ended to make it 13-0. The visitors struck back with two second-quarter touchdowns but could make neither extra point. When Spacek fell on a fumble in the losers' end zone just before the half ended, Hun led by 19-12.

Two more scores in the final quarter iced the game for Coach Josh Miner's improving forces. They'll take on Solebury at New Hope this Friday and play Morristown a week from Saturday.

DEEP ROOTED
When PFO "opened shop" as Princeton's first fuel oil dealer, we started business right here on Alexander Street. Over the years we've grown steadily, but we're still delivering that clean filtered Princeton Fuel Oil from the same location in Princeton. If you enjoy the feeling of confidence that comes from doing business with the "oldest in town," give us a call—our roots are deep.

Hear A Fine Concert and Support Princeton Hospital!

The two go together: on Saturday, November 4, the internationally-famous Westminster Choir will give one of its most popular programs in McCarter Theatre. Sponsored by the civic-minded Rotary Club, the concert will benefit the Princeton Hospital Building Fund:

The Westminster Choir is one of America's most popular choral groups. Be sure to hear it when it sings in your own home town.
